

SOUTH OAKLAND GARDENING SURVEY

In order to better understand the food gardening habits and barriers to gardening in South Oakland, research is being conducted as part of a community-based project through the Pitt Honors College to understand gardening habits in South Oakland to determine why people do, and don't garden. If barriers are identified, this project aims to connect residents to gardening resources. We are asking residents to fill out a 5 minute anonymous survey, link available on SONG website or request paper version.

In the very near future, in-person surveys (approx 15 min) will be taken of both gardeners and non-gardeners, about why for more in depth analysis. Surveys hopefully will be done by March 10th, but may extend a few weeks to get enough completed. Data analysis and report will be done by the end of April. If the results identify a problem that could be addressed, the student will try to coordinate an event or program sometime in May to try and help people in the community who need help to start gardening.

If you know anyone interested in participating please find the link on SouthOaklandPgh.org or contact SONG at (412) 440-8840

SOUTH OAKLAND GARDENING SURVEY

In order to better understand the food gardening habits and barriers to gardening in South Oakland, research is being conducted as part of a community-based project through the Pitt Honors College to understand gardening habits in South Oakland to determine why people do, and don't garden. If barriers are identified, this project aims to connect residents to gardening resources. We are asking residents to fill out a 5 minute anonymous survey, link available on SONG website or request paper version.

In the very near future, in-person surveys (approx 15 min) will be taken

of both gardeners and non-gardeners, about why for more in depth analysis. Surveys hopefully will be done by March 10th, but may extend a few weeks to get enough completed. Data analysis and report will be done by the end of April. If the results identify a problem that could be addressed, the student will try to coordinate an event or program sometime in May to try and help people in the community who need help to start gardening.

If you know anyone interested in participating please find the link on SouthOaklandPgh.org or contact SONG at (412) 440-8840

SOUTH OAKLAND GARDENING SURVEY

In order to better understand the food gardening habits and barriers to gardening in South Oakland, research is being conducted as part of a community-based project through the Pitt Honors College to understand gardening habits in South Oakland to determine why people do, and don't garden. If barriers are identified, this project aims to connect residents to gardening resources. We are asking residents to fill out a 5 minute anonymous survey, link available on SONG website or request paper version.

In the very near future, in-person surveys (approx 15 min) will be taken

of both gardeners and non-gardeners, about why for more in depth analysis. Surveys hopefully will be done by March 10th, but may extend a few weeks to get enough completed. Data analysis and report will be done by the end of April. If the results identify a problem that could be addressed, the student will try to coordinate an event or program sometime in May to try and help people in the community who need help to start gardening.

If you know anyone interested in participating please find the link on SouthOaklandPgh.org or contact SONG at (412) 440-8840

